

2" of new snow and lots of wind from the S-SW made for sensitive conditions on Mt Blackmore. We triggered numerous slopes that were similar to this one. No deep slab releases, but these were easily big enough to drag a person into rocks or over cliffs. Slopes with a N-NE aspect were by far the most active. Photo by GNFAC

Advisory Region
Northern Gallatin

Forecast link: GNFAC Avalanche Advisory for Sat Feb 13, 2010
Northern Gallatin, 2010-02-12